particulars and discuss the affair. All sorts to conclose were expressed. It was generally agreed that the provocation for the assault was calculated to exappease the facility of the assault and the color hand it was conceded that, the mode of redress and the place and time sheeted to exceed it; were reprehensible and unfortunate, and that the set will not have a tendency to dispel the reports that led to he affay. The assault was a palpable breach of the peace, and a violation of law. In a legal point of ylew, no man is justified in taking the law into his own hands for the redress of personal control of the peace. for the excitement and exasperation of seeling under which he isbored. On the other hand, it.W.'s friends will my, that an amount made upon a many the way a cripple at the time, and wholly unable to defead himself, was unmanly, to my the least. No man will, regret the affeit more deeply than Mr. Fairr himself, after his feelings cost down and the sober second thought entures.

Without a protecting friend, I should consider a damphier of mine, of this young girls age and with her appearance and want of experience after in the hands of Finher, Clayton and Kenticky Joe, on their houser, for the time being, than at out of these heilish places in the kind of company the sill knew make up and attend these masquered halls. This merchant's policemen makes his since ment and claims good intentions and great philantirrapy, in all his soverneesle, actions and propositions to this young girl; has after all, his expectations, in a permitary way, were considerable, and had, as he says received something already to watch over her and knep her trail. Now, if all motives were good, he certainly took a being ing mode of carrying out his plans, and such a philanthropy I should call a villatous philanthropy; and any sam who would take the course he has done to save a virtuous young girl; think would be called a fail or villato, or both. I had expected this man Speer would explain, as he promised, his connection with the affair; but his explanation is a statement without explanation, and leaves his motives in the affair as much under suspicion as helore.

The man Kirk uppears to have had different roctives and expectations to guide him. If he went to keeping house, he wanted the young girl as hourder, and if he had a ball, she would attract the young men. Each of these parties seen to be working separate plans for their own may be also said of some of the females whose carners appear in the case, heads Mrs. Kirk, who was an allowables to put motivy in the girl a pocket.

some of the females whose sames appear in the case, health Mrs. Kirk, who was an exciton to put money in the girl's pocket.

But if does not appear that Kirk had the knowledge of Miss McCarthy and her history that Spoer had, and therefore his conduct pothers, under the absumatances, was less criminal.

The cause of justice may perhaps be as fully answored, as well on this young weman's account as on that of the public, by having this presseding go no farther. Miss McCarthyle reputation for chartily has far as my evidence against har appears, it made good, and she is restored to her parasta. It only remains now for her to choose her course, which the can do, and thus eatiny the cammanity and again become the pride of her friends and orquinitances.

As to the complicacy between these parties, on which they my armigned, I are no evidence that member of Congress telt aggrieved at file course to set promptly. He referred to the fact that the resolutions undersed unconditionally the repeal of the Missouri Compressio, notwithstanding the michlevens results of that repeal hed become patent and unmistable, which, in the language of the President, have convented the Union to the centre, lighted the flames of civil war in Kamas, and produced cagerons sections parties throughout the confederacy. Mr. Bell alluded to the various elections in Tennessee since the vote now called in quasilion, showing that the Kamas-Nebruska bill was but slightly alluded to in the different canvasses. Mr. Fillmore, declared tab sha the been a member of Congress he would have roted against the Nebruska bill, Mr. E traige, who voted against the Nebruska bill, was returned to Congress by an increased vot. He thought at no time since the repeal of the Missouri Contrornise had there been any scated indication of opposition in the South. He believed if a fair, impartial vote could be taken on fre question, there would he an overwhelming ms. rity for pa souncing it the most unfortunate measure that Congress ever passed.

Mr. Johnson, of Tennessee, alluded to the Tennessee election, showing that in 1854, he fore the passage of the Kamas-Nebruska bill, the Tennessee Legislature passed resolutions approving that measure, and requesting the members of Congress aron Tennessee to support it. The Nebruska bill was also the main laste in the election of '55 and '56. He contended therefore, 'that a large majority of the people of Tennessee condemned Mr. Bell's course. He asked, Mr. Bell whether he would to the first such instructions.

Mr. Bell would not vote for it in consequence of instructions.

Mr. Bell would not vote for it in consequence of instructions unless he was fully convinced that such instructions were founded upon the fall inide standing of the subject in all its bearings and consequences.

Mr. Johnson proceeded to draw a parallel between his own course and Mr. Bell's. He hoped there would be no more compromise.

Mr. Bell convintance of his colleague's speech as the bitteress, most insulting and personal ever concorted by premeditated malice. He was ready to meet the Sensior at any time and any others that should back him. [Sensation, 1] Horse. The Honse went into Committee of the Whole on the Indian Appropriation Bill.

Mr. Barroughs vindicated the North from the charge of sectionalism preferred by Southern gentlemen. Referring to statistical tacts, he showed the immense preponderance of expanditures by the Government in behalf of the South over the North. He also contended for the superiority of the North over the South in wealth, industry, population, education, etc.—He proceeded to decounce Messrs, Pierre and Buchanan, and their course on the Kansan question.

Buchanan, and their course on the Kunsas question.

Mr. Smith, of Va., called him to order. It was disorderly for gentlemen to denounce on this floor, a co-ordinate branch of the Government. [Orice of "No! no!"]

Mr. Burroughs would be happy if he could say in his heart he hope of James Buchanan, but he must be allowed to speak his candidopinion. He was proceeding when Mr. Smith again intercupted him.

Mnch confusion ensued during which his hour closed.

Mr. Curry, of Alabana, said that the Lecompton Constitution was adopted under all the forms of law, by conservative law abiding men, and opposed only by factionists and robels; some of his friends, like his colleague, spoke of a campromise by Congress, to order
